While there are books which mention the GPO in the context of the 1916 Rising and books which consider its architectural distinction, there is none which makes the building the focus of our attention and lets it, as it were, tell the story of the events, great and small, which have happened in and around it over the centuries. From sealing wax to the early days of broadcasting and from the Dead Letter Office to the Proclamation, Stephen Ferguson's At the Heart of Events - Dublin's General Post Office is a fascinating guide to the GPO.

On page 6 we reflect on the centenary of the sinking of RMS Titanic. RMS Titanic, the world's most famous ship, was designed to be the largest vessel to ever take to the seas. We look at a number of individuals associated with the RMS Titanic: Thomas Andrews, the naval architect in charge of RMS Titanic's plans, Captain Edward J. Smith, Father Browne, photographer on board from Southampton to Cork, and the 'Unsinkable' Molly Brown (néé Tobin).

Dare to find out more about Count Dracula inside this issue of The Collector on page 8! This year marks the centenary of the death of Bram Stoker. Bram Stoker was famous for his novel Dracula, about an aristocratic vampire in Transylvania.

Discover the diversity of Irish attractions for visitors and their value as a cornerstone of Irish tourism. On page 10, we view stamps featuring photographic images of Small Skellig, County Kerry and the Ha'penny Bridge in Dublin.

It's almost time to celebrate the 50th International Eucharistic Congress. The Roman Catholic Church celebrates a milestone gathering in Ireland. Find out more on page 12.

On page 14 we view stamps that are based on paintings by Vincent Killowry that depict images of yachts from the competing teams in the Volvo Ocean Race.

Learn about America's most famous stamp, the Inverted Jenny on page 16. Find out how this philatelic misprint became one of the world's most famous and valuable stamps.

Don't forget to check out Last Chance Saloon on page 18 for the final opportunity to get your hands on stamps such as the Centenary of the Irish Amateur Boxing Association, Europa – Forests, The Year of Craft in Ireland, Ireland's National Parks and 50th Anniversary of Amnesty International.

Correction : Contemporary Arts — Dance

In The Collector 01/12, Rex Levitates was incorrectly stated as one of the four featured dance companies on these stamps. This was not the case, the four featured dance companies are Irish Modern Dance Theatre, Fabulous Beast Dance Theatre, CoisCéim Dance Theatre and Dance Theatre of Ireland. The information on the late Martha Graham was also, unfortunately incorrect. Any inconvenience caused by these errors is regretted.

CENTENARY OF THE SINKING OF RMS TITANIC

“The memory of the most lavish liner afloat lives on.”

Dubbed ‘The Ship of Dreams’, RMS Titanic was the largest ship afloat when it was launched at the Harland and Wolff Shipyard in Belfast in 1911. Weighing 46,000 tons, and measuring 882.75 feet in length, it dwarfed all other passenger liners of the day.

With Captain Edward J. Smith (who was due to retire after the maiden voyage) at the helm, RMS Titanic weighed anchor for what was to be the final time as she departed Queenstown (now Cobh) in the early afternoon of 11 April, and steamed out into the Atlantic with 2,229 passengers and crew on board.

Despite frequent iceberg warnings, Captain Edward J. Smith, at the constant urging of J. Bruce Ismay, chairman of the White Star Line, agreed to increase the ship’s speed in a vain attempt to arrive in New York a day earlier than scheduled. The ship sped on deeper into the cold, clear night of 14 April, until at 11.40 pm it struck an iceberg a glancing blow that tore a wound along the right side of the ship’s hull, just below the waterline. From that moment on the ship was doomed. There was only enough

CENTENARY OF THE DEATH OF BRAM STOKER

“The name Dracula still strikes fear into even the most hardened hearts.”

Bram Stoker, born Abraham Stoker on 8 November, 1847 in Clontarf, Dublin, is best remembered for his classic Gothic horror novel, Dracula, first published in 1897.

In 1870, Stoker graduated from Trinity College, Dublin, whereupon he took up a civil service post in Dublin Castle.

Unsurprisingly perhaps, Stoker discovered the civil service wasn't his cup of tea, so to speak. So, in his spare time, he turned to being a drama critic for the Dublin Evening Mail and also started to develop stories and articles for publication. That said, he rose through the ranks of the civil service, and had his first book published, Duties of Clerks of Petty Sessions in Ireland.

He first met Henry Irving when the renowned actor, who was on a visit to Dublin, thanked him for his glowing review of his production of Hamlet. Their friendship developed to the point where, in 1878, Irving suggested Stoker decamp Dublin and join him in London as manager of the Lyceum Theatre.

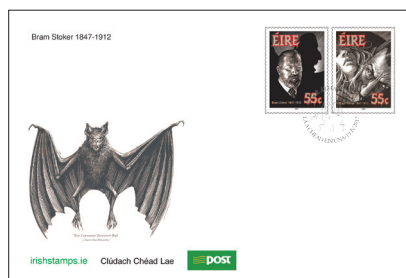

During his managerial tenure at the Lyceum Theatre, Stoker finally took to writing on a regular basis. In 1897 Dracula was published.

The book, which netted him very little in terms of income during his lifetime, has been the inspiration for hundreds of films and a flourishing tourism industry in both Transylvania and the English seaside town of Whitby, the first landfall for Count Dracula in his search for fresh victims of vampirism.

In later life, Stoker suffered from a succession of strokes, and died on 20 April, 1912 at the age of 64. To commemorate the centenary of his death, An Post is issuing two graphically arresting stamps designed by David Rooney, and depicting Stoker's most famous, and enduring, creation. In addition, a fearful minisheet and two dramatic First Day Covers are also available.

EUROPA — VISIT IRELAND

The very first Europa stamps were issued in 1956. At that time there were only six countries (Belgium, France, Germany, Italy, Luxembourg and the Netherlands) in the ECSC (European Coal and Steel Community). The ECSC was an early forerunner of the European Union.

Stamps with a common design were intended to demonstrate solidarity, unity and a shared sense of purpose between the member European countries as they battled the many difficulties associated with the Cold War period in Europe.

Nowadays, the common theme of every year's Europa stamps is determined by European Postal Administrations (PostEurop). Each individual country then has the opportunity to design and issue their own stamps based upon that theme.

The common theme this year is Visit. Each country will have a design based on this theme. For example Ireland will be Visit Ireland and this theme is stunningly reflected in the two Irish stamps, designed by Steve Simpson, and featuring photographic images of Small Skellig off the coast of County Kerry, and the iconic Ha'penny Bridge that spans the River Liffey in Dublin.

Small Skellig is home to 27,000 gannets, the second largest colony of such seabirds in the world.

The Ha'penny Bridge is one of Dublin's most recognisable landmarks, built to replace the aging ferries that once transported Dubliners back and forth across the river. Its name is derived from the fact that a toll of one Ha'penny (which was discontinued in 1919) was charged to traverse it. In 2001, the bridge was significantly renovated and restructured by Harland and Wolff, the same company that built RMS Titanic.

50TH INTERNATIONAL EUCHARISTIC CONGRESS

“Roman Catholic church celebrates milestone gathering in Ireland.”

From 10-17 June this year, Ireland will once again welcome the world's Catholic community to its shores to celebrate the 50th International Eucharistic Congress. It is expected that over 25,000 pilgrims will take part each day of the weeklong Congress based at the Royal Dublin Society in Dublin. Organisers also anticipate 12,000 international pilgrims, and up to 80,000 participants at the Statio Orbis (final mass) scheduled for the Croke Park closing ceremonies.

This massive, and indeed momentous, event will also feature more than 150 workshops and discussion groups, 18 keynote addresses by international speakers, masses, prayers and liturgical celebrations in seven languages, plus Eucharistic Processions, Adorations and Benedictions.

The theme of the 2012 Congress is 'Communion with Christ and One Another'. The Congress is designed to promote an awareness of the central place of the Eucharist in the life and mission of the Church and draws attention to the social dimension of the Eucharist.

The opening liturgy of the 50th International Eucharistic Congress will take place on Sunday, 10 June in the Arena at the Royal Dublin Society on the feast of Corpus Christi. The Mass, which will include pilgrims from all over Ireland and overseas, will be broadcast on television and online.

To mark this occasion, two commemorative stamps were designed by Martin Barlow. The 55c stamp features the Chalice and Host and illustrates the importance of the Eucharist to the Catholic faith. The 82c stamp depicts the Monstrance and the Blessed Sacrament, and illustrates how the lay faithful in the Church view the Monstrance and the Blessed Sacrament as the visible presence of God.

VOLVO OCEAN RACE

“A true celebration of our seafaring spirit.”

When Sir Robin Knox-Johnson became the first person to sail non-stop, and single-handedly, around the world in 1969, he couldn't have foreseen how his daring feat would become the inspiration for the planet's premier yacht race, as well as one of the most emotionally and physically demanding sporting events in the world.

In 1973, a mere four years after Sir Robin Knox-Johnson's incredible accomplishment, fully crewed yachts participated in the inaugural Whitbread Round the World Race. The contest was so perilous that three sailors were lost after being washed overboard in storms. This race has since become known as The Volvo Ocean Race and is held every four years.

The contest involves sailing teams made up of 11 professional crew members racing around the clock for up to 20 days at a time on certain legs of the race. Apart from their roles as sailors, two of the crew must have had medical training. There is also a dedicated sail maker, engineer and media crew member on board each yacht.

During the course of the race, crews experience the ultimate in extremes; they eat only freeze-dried food, endure temperatures that range from a numbing -5 to a searing +40 degrees Celsius, and undergo prolonged hunger and sleep deprivation.

The gruelling race which started in Alicante, Spain in November 2011, lasts nine months and covers over 39,000 nautical miles. Crews will encounter some of the world's most treacherous seas en route – around Cape Town, Abu Dhabi, Auckland and Cape Horn – before finally reaching the finish line in Galway in early July.

To celebrate this prestigious event, An Post is issuing a set of two striking stamps designed by Steve Simpson, based on paintings by Vincent Killowry. This is the second time the Volvo Ocean Race has hit Irish shores and this is the second stamp issue painted by Vincent Killowry. The stamp captures the tremendous competitive spirit of the race itself and is denominated at 55c. A second stamp, denominated at €3.00, is only available as part of a specially produced minisheet.

THE INVERTED JENNY

“Anything but a flying start for America’s most famous stamp.”

The Curtiss JN-4, affectionately known as the ‘Jenny’, was a biplane originally developed for the purposes of training military pilots. In fact, over 95% of all American and Canadian pilots who saw combat in World War 1 received their training on this highly dependable, two-seater aircraft. The ‘Jenny’ was also the first mass produced airplane. And, after the war, many thousands were sold to private citizens and aerobatic pilots.

Amongst philatelists, however, the ‘Jenny’ is most famous for flying upside down on a 24 cent American stamp that went on sale on 13 May, 1918 to mark the United States Post Office’s new air mail service. The new service scheduled to operate between Washington D.C., Philadelphia and New York City, was going to cost a much higher price than the normal first class service of the day.

Sheets of 100 of the new stamps, which were printed in haste, needed to be fed through the spider printing press not once, but twice. As luck would have it, one sheet was put in the wrong way around on the second pass and the ‘Jenny’ was accidentally inverted. This single sheet of 100 stamps was sold before the mistake was spotted, and so the Inverted Jenny became the most famous error in American philately.

An avid American stamp collector, William T. Robey, caught wind of the possible misprint and withdrew US $30 from his bank account and marched into his local post office on 14 May. He put US $24 down on the counter and asked for a sheet of the new 24 cent stamps. He could scarcely believe his eyes when the clerk handed him a sheet of the Inverted Jenny. He would later sell his prized philatelic find to a dealer for what was then the princely sum of US $15,000. Another interesting piece of lore surrounding the Inverted Jenny involves the number that appears on the side of the plane: 38262. This number was randomly selected by the engraver of the famous image, who couldn't possibly have known that a plane bearing that very number would be the first one to leave Washington D.C. on the inaugural air mail flight in the United States.

Owing to the fact that only 100 of these stamps were released, the Inverted Jenny stamps have managed to fetch colossal sums from collectors. For instance, in 2007, US $977,500 was paid for a single stamp at auction, while a block of four sold for US $2.7 million in 2005.
